OLYMPIC NATIONAL PARK

Frontcountry friendly
• The Olympic Discovery Trail, a 135-mile multi-use trail extending between Port Townsend and La Push, is shown in its entirety.
• 14 Whale Trail sites along the Olympic Peninsula are now included.
• Over 125 beach access locations are categorized by either vehicle or boat-in access only.

Backcountry ready
• Backcountry camping details included such as site capacities, site quotas, food storage requirements, and which sites allow campfires.
• Trails are now color-coded by use to show where horses, bikes, and motorized vehicles are allowed.
• Trails with steep slopes are marked.
• Additional notations are included for Stove-only Zones and where trail users should use extra caution.
• Locations on beaches where trails may be impacted by tidal activity are noted.
• The Pacific Northwest Trail is shown between Cape Alva and Port Townsend.

Cartographic staff partnered with the National Park Service, U.S. Forest Service, and Washington State Department of Natural Resources during the review process.
